Sure, it’s winter now... but summer is on its way, and the time to make your summer plans is NOW. Will you be looking for a job? Many of the best ones have early application deadlines. What about a high-quality academic program, internship, or volunteer program? You may need to write an essay and get letters of recommendation from a teacher or adult mentor, and that can take time. There are a lot of great things to do in and around Boston. You could get a job, take dancing lessons, learn to sail or play golf, act in a play, volunteer at a museum or homeless shelter, plan for college, intern in a science lab or on a farm, and go to free concerts and films. (You could even work on your math skills...) Need ideas? Summer Stuff 2018 is full of good ideas. (We’ve even thrown in some ideas for this spring and next school year.) Read it through, circle the ones that interest you, then visit their websites or call. They’re waiting to hear from you. Most of these programs can be found at PartnerBPS.org. Use the search engine to find exactly what you want. Next, apply — now. In many cases, you can apply online or print an application from the website. Don’t be put off by the cost of some programs. Many have scholarships, and they are looking for Boston students in fact, some programs are only for students who go to the Boston Public Schools. Good luck—and have a great summer!

What to Look For in a Summer Camp or Program

After you have picked the camps or programs that work best with your schedule and would be most interesting to your child, get more information about them. Call each camp and ask a lot of questions.

Some questions to ask program and camp staff:

• Is the camp or program accredited or licensed? If so, by whom? If not, why not?

• What training does camp staff receive on safety, supervision, counseling, problem solving, and other issues unique to working with young children?

• Does the price include everything, or are there extra charges for transportation, food service, overnights, registration, clothing, etc.?

• If transportation is provided, what are the specifics?

• If before and after camp activities are offered, who is with the children and what will they be doing?

• Are there competitive activities (such as team sports)? Is your child comfortable with the level of competition?

• How can parents stay in touch with their children during camp? Are phone calls or e-mail allowed?

• How does the camp meet campers’ special dietary or physical needs?

• Is there an open house before camp starts so parents can tour the camp and meet the director?

• Are there visiting days?

Plan ahead for college.

Summer is a great time to learn about careers and colleges, and Boston has great (and air-conditioned) places to do just that: American Student Assistance (ASA) College Planning Centers at the Boston Public Library in Copley Square and in many neighborhoods. They have everything you need to make career and college decisions:

- Information on thousands of colleges, universities, and technical/vocational programs
- Counseling on choosing a school and paying for it
- Help completing admission and financial aid applications
- Computerized college, career and scholarship search systems
- And much more. Help is available in several languages. And it’s all free.

Check their website for tons of resources. If you go to the Boston Public Schools, you are eligible for financial aid and many scholarships. Every BPS high school has a uAspire advisor who can help you find funding for college. Contact uAspire at 617-778-7195 or visit their website: uaspire.org
